KIWI Lerberg in Norway receives Austrian Green Planet Building® Technology Award

Sustainable building "Made in Austria": supermarket's roof construction reduces greenhouse gas emissions

For the supermarket building of the KIWI chain in Hokksund, Norway, greenhouse gas emissions and energy consumption were to be kept as low as possible. KIELSTEG Bauelemente supplied the roof construction, which made a significant contribution to reducing the building's greenhouse gas emissions. The roof, made of wood and constructed using a lightweight system, has an enormously high load-bearing capacity and can thus withstand snow and greenery without any problems. Despite this, the building only requires one support axis for the roof span of 40 metres.

The Austrian Green Planet Building® Technology Award honours Austrian companies whose technologies significantly support the climate protection and energy efficiency goals of Austrian Green Planet Building® (AGPB).

Energy efficiency and the supply of renewable energy are the focus of Austrian Green Planet Building® (AGPB). AGPB transfers the objectives and strict criteria of the national climate protection initiative klimaaktiv for the building and real estate industry to an international level. The outstanding achievements of Austrian planning offices, consultants, construction companies and production plants abroad in the field of sustainable building – Austrian Green Planet Building® distinguishes them.

AGPB is an umbrella brand supported by the Federal Ministry for Climate Protection, Environment, Energy, Mobility, Innovation and Technology and AUSSENWIRTSCHAFT AUSTRIA.

The KIWI Lerberg building in Hokksund, Norway receives the Austrian Green Planet Building® Technology Award: It sets impulses in terms of ecological responsibility by greatly reducing greenhouse gas emissions and energy consumption. This is achieved, among other things, with the characteristic roof construction with high load-bearing capacity.
